Further Reading

http://www.gendocs.demon.co.uk/1851.html, ‘incompleteness of the 1851 census a case study’. Case of a Manchester man who wrote to the press about his schedule not being collected during the 1851 census. Action seems to have been taken since historians have discovered his census details appear (out of sequence) on the final page of the enumerator’s book for his district.

http://www.genuki.org.uk/big/eng/CensusR.html Online resources from the nineteenth century censuses for England, some on Ireland, little on Wales or Scotland.

This new web exhibition uses words, pictures and documents to open a door onto life in 1901.

http://learningcurve.pro.gov.uk/FocusOn/census/census.htm

http://learningcurve.pro.gov.uk/FocusOn/census/your/investigation http://www.uk.olivesoftware.com/archive/skins/bl/navigator.asp

http://www.spartacus.schoolnet.co.uk/Prcruikshank.htm